Bitter Fight In Solomons Takes Heavy Toll Of Sailors, Marines

NO FIGURES ON AFRICA

Most Of Fighters On Record Held As Prisoners By Axis Powers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—The office of war information today listed total announced casualties of the United States armed forces since the outbreak of war at 48,956, including many who have fallen in the bitter Solomons' fighting where even now another battle is raging.

The OWI reported announced casualties of the United States marine corps from the outbreak of war to October 31 as follows:

Dead, 734; wounded, 703; missing, 1,900.

Major assignment of the fighting "Leathernecks" to date has been the invasion of the Japanese-held Solomon Islands in the South Pacific, which began in the first week of August and currently is continuing with unabated intensity.

Army Aids Marines In recent weeks, the marines have been augmented in the Solomons by U. S. army troops.

The total OWI casualty report—killed, wounded, missing and prisoners of war—covers operations of the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard and Philippine scouts.

It represents an increase of 4,813 casualties in the more than three months of warfare that have elapsed since the last over-all compilation of casualties by the OWI last July 21. The total then was 44,143.

OWI's current summary, however, does not include casualties of the North African offensive, launched little over a week ago by British and American forces.

The war department reported that as of November 12 the army's announced casualties totaled 32,429, of whom 1,069 were killed; 1,531 wounded, 161 prisoners and (Continued on Page Eight)

MILLION LOST AS FIRE WRECKS PONTIAC STORE

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 16—Fire early today destroyed one of Pontiac's largest department stores, causing damage estimated at $1,000,000 and then spread to an adjacent store and threatened other structures.

The blaze broke out in the fourth floor stock room of Chase's department store. The blaze, raging uncontrolled despite the efforts of firemen, swept through the Chase establishment and ate its way into a Woolworth store next door.

As the flames still raged, firemen sought to save a tavern, an apartment building and a grocery across the alley from the Woolworth store.

Vichy Staff Would Stay In America

Embassy Members Wish To Quit Petain As Result Of Hun Occupation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Almost every member of the French embassy in Washington today is trying to avoid returning to Vichy, France.

Most of the embassy's staff, including the military, naval and air attaches, want to quit the Vichy government as a result of the German occupation of all France and the American move to liberate French North Africa.

With the exception of Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye, none of the embassy staff wants to return to Vichy. They want to remain in the United States or proceed to French North Africa.

All the career diplomats under the ambassador, and the military, naval and air attaches have taken definite steps to try to avoid returning to Vichy.

The diplomatic officers have notified the state department that they are prepared to place themselves at the disposal of any provisional French government which is established in North Africa.

The military and naval attaches have sent a message to Admiral Jean Darlan in Algiers expressing their desire to place themselves at his disposal. The message to Darlan was signed by Brig. Gen. Auguste Bonavita, the military attaché, and Capt. Denis De Bourgoing, the naval attaché.

While stating that the French military, naval and air attaches and their assistants in Washington remain faithful to their oath to Marshal Henri Petain, the message said they all recognize (Continued on Page Eight)

SIX CONVICTED AS TRAITORS AWAITING FATE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—Convicted of treason against the United States, six German-born Chicagoans sat in their county jail cells today, calmly awaiting their fate which may range from a minimum sentence of five years imprisonment and $10,000 fines to death.

The three middle-aged couples, Hans Max Haupt and his wife, Erna, parents of Herbert Hans Haupt, executed Nazi spy; Walter and Lucille Froehling, young Haupt's uncle and aunt, and Otto and Kate Wergin, friends of the saboteur, were found guilty by a jury Saturday night and will be sentenced Friday by Federal Judge William J. Campbell.

They were convicted of helping young Haupt after he landed from a German submarine on the east coast with other Nazi agents to carry on a campaign of sabotage in the United States. The jury of eight women and four men deliberated two hours and 50 minutes. While it was not known how many ballots were taken, one of the jurors, John Paycheck, former prizefighter, said:

"This was the toughest fight I ever had."

While jail attendants said the prisoners showed little emotion over the verdict, all six were under heavy guard to prevent them from attempting suicide.

WAR SERVICE OF WILLKIE WINS INDIANA MEDAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Wendell L. Willkie today was revealed as the recipient of the Distinguished War Service award conferred on a native of Indiana by the sons of Indiana, according to results of a mail poll in which 1,250 prominent Hoosiers in the metropolitan area and Washington, D. C., as well as all editors of Indiana papers participated.

Willkie received 4,915 points as against 2,615 for Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, his nearest rival among the sixteen persons nominated for the award, won last year by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

MODOC FALLS TO LURE OF TODDY

Runaway Elephant Back In Captivity After Four Days Of Thrilling Freedom

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 16—Modoc, the runaway female elephant that alternately terrified and amused the Indiana countryside for more than four days, was back in captivity today.

Just what the enticement was that lured Modoc back to the companionship of her elephant playmates, Empress and Judy, was a matter of some debate.

Some said it was realization of the comforts of home that came to the truant pachyderm when she was offered 30 loaves of bread, which she tossed in her capacious maw in rapid succession.

Others whispered—and this was a slight reflection on the big lady's personal habits—that it was a promise that if she surrendered she would get a really elephantine toddy with six quarts of warm whiskey as its base.

"Sure, she knew she'd get the toddy," they said. "Didn't 'Corrine' tell her?"

DIMOUT AREA WIDENS ALONG ATLANTIC COAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Residents of the coastal area of New York, New Jersey and Delaware today faced new army dimout regulations, effective Friday, as a result of aerial surveys designed to reduce skyglow that has silhouetted vessels along the coast for hostile submarines. Eight major changes detailing reduced glow from lights, even to railroad, elevated train, street car, bus and ferry lights, were issued.

Four additional New Jersey communities, Fort Lee, Teaneck, Englewood, and Englewood cliffs were included on the dimout area and Maj. Gen. T. A. Terry, commanding general of the second service command, declared that the area would be extended if surveys disclose that skyglow has not been reduced to a minimum.

In issuing the new regulations the army stressed that federal law not only provided stiff penalties but that violators also were liable to immediate exclusion from the entire eastern military area, comprising all states along the eastern seaboard. Enemy alien offenders are subject also to internment.

DEFENSE BOARD TAKES OFFICES AT COURTHOUSE

Pickaway county commissioners Monday gave permission to the Circleville Civilian Defense Council to make offices in the courthouse formerly used by the Division of Aid for the Aged as its headquarters.

The council is scheduled to meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Elks home, but all meetings after this week's will be conducted in the new headquarters which will be equipped as the post control center. At present telephone facilities already in the building will be used by the council.

Defense council had originally planned to make the federal building at Court and Mound streets its headquarters, but permission to use a room there was withdrawn after several meetings had been conducted.

Big control maps to be installed on the walls of the courthouse room, and other equipment necessary for operation of the office will be provided.

At the Monday evening meeting heads of all Defense Council divisions are expected to report on the number of persons having completed all phases of their training and the number with partial training.

All officials of the council are working toward the blackout which is expected to be ordered in Circleville within the next month. A county-wide blackout will take place within six weeks.

There are several of the council's important units which are not yet fully prepared for such a blackout test, and it is these which will receive much attention from the council during the next two weeks. A meeting is expected to be called sometime this week for Circleville business men who failed to appear last Friday when C. T. Gilmore, chairman of the business area unit of the council, called a session to provide instruction for merchants who must have all outside lights turned off when the blackout comes. Attendance at the Friday night meeting was poor, so the second is being called.

MCCNUTT DISPLEASED BY WAR WORK SHIRKERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, today recommended that draft deferments be revoked in cases of war workers who absent themselves from their jobs.

At a press conference, however, McNutt declined to openly describe his suggestion as a "work or fight" edict.

JESSIE SUMNER RAPS RATIONING

Congresswoman Says Plan Caters To Rich Men And Hits Housewife

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Assailing what she termed "rich man's rationing," Congresswoman Jessie Sumner (R) Ill., today charged that government policies are stripping the housewife's table of meat and coffee while hotels and restaurants have "plenty of both commodities for those who can pay the price."

She particularly rapped the OPA's announcement giving hotels and restaurants coffee on the basis of their requirements for September and October while limiting the person who drinks his coffee at home to one cup a day.

"The OPA," Miss Sumner said, "simply assures restaurants and hotels that they will get as much coffee as usual, and so will their customers."

"It is the same with meat. Hotels and restaurants are naturally the favored customers of the packers and wholesalers because they buy the best cuts which leaves the housewife on the outside looking in."

ANTI-SEMITIC VIOLENCE LAID TO PROPAGANDA

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Asserting that Nazi inspired propaganda directed against air raid wardens and other Civilian Defense workers was in back of recent instances of anti-Semitic violence, Commissioner of Investigation William B. Herliands today began an investigation of 22 specific cases of terrorism and vandalism committed in public buildings, including schools, synagogues and defense offices.

Revealing the first findings of the inquiry ordered a month ago by Mayor F. H. La Guardia, Herliands, speaking at the twenty-fifth anniversary dinner of the American Jewish Congress, declared that the significance of a series of anti-American and anti-Semitic occurrences is "that similar methods are employed, that similar motives are in operation and that the inspiration is, directly or indirectly, from Nazi sources."

BIG WIGS SAY FDR WILL NOT RUN IN 1944

Congressional Democrats Show Keen Interest In President's Plans

WILL CHOOSE CANDIDATE

Party Standard Bearer Will Be Choice Of Executive, Leaders Believe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—President Franklin D. Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a fourth term but will personally name the nominee to carry the Democratic standard in the 1944 campaign.

This represents a summary of opinion among Democratic leaders in Congress today, although a few New Dealers insist Mr. Roosevelt will run again in 1944.

There is no agreement on the identity of his choice for 1944 in event he "does not choose to run."

With the nominating convention 18 months away and with the Republican party in the ascendancy, congressional Democrats are displaying intense interest in Mr. Roosevelt's plans for 1944. The spreading belief on Capitol Hill that Mr. Roosevelt will not run again merely serves to enhance interest in the political stroke of lightning by which he would name his successor as the Democratic standard-bearer.

New Dealers Hopeful

There are a few New Dealers, however, who insist that Mr. Roosevelt will again be the nominee two years hence. They base their forecast upon the belief that the President cannot retire in the midst of the Second World War, or the subsequent peace negotiations—whichever happens to be the fact in the Summer of 1944.

But those Democrats, New Dealers and regulars alike, who believe he will retire at the end of his present term, reason like this: Mr. Roosevelt will be glad to drop his White House burdens in 1944, after 12 years as President, and his great ambition then will be to represent the United States at the peace conference and thereby incorporate his "Atlantic charter" in the peace (Continued on Page Eight)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

New York tossed its pots, pans and curling irons into the scrap drive a month ago.

Everybody felt pretty good about it.

Everybody thought that by the next week the stuff would be headed for the furnaces.

And by the week after that it would be headed for Berlin, Rome or Tokyo.

It ain't so.

More than 85 per cent of that beautiful, precious, badly-needed scrap is still at the scrap depots where it was dumped the first day.

New York had the same experience with its aluminum drive.

If that's a general condition it's a national monument to bungling.

Thought for the day: We never learn nothin'.

LONDON COUPLE KILLED
COLUMBUS, Nov. 16—An elderly London, O., couple were killed when their auto was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing west of Columbus. Coroner Edward E. Smith identified the victims as Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Roberts, 62 and 63. They were returning home after visiting relatives in Columbus.

Fuel Gas Rationing May Be Next

Serious Supply Situation Exists In All Parts Of Nation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—WPB officials indicated today that manufactured and natural gas will have to be rationed in some areas this Winter, if current efforts to obtain a voluntary reduction in consumption fail.

Officials said that the situation is most acute in some cities served by manufactured gas, but refused to identify the areas for security reasons.

A serious gas supply situation exists, however, in all parts of the nation.

Herbert S. Marks, acting chief of the WPB power branch, said that no plan of rationing has yet been worked out, but added that "we haven't given up trying to devise a scheme."

"It is an awfully difficult thing to do," Marks explained. "We just haven't found the practical method yet."

In Great Britain, rationing is done on a quota basis with each home entitled to a certain number of units of heat. The units apply to any form of fuel—wood, coal, electricity or gas.

The WPB already has invoked controls short of rationing in an effort to curtail consumption. One of the latest actions was to extend to all gas rationing equipment the prohibition against new gas deliveries. The ban previously did not affect small unit heaters.

Officials appealed to consumers to give up such peace-time luxury habits as having two baths a day, filling the tub to overflowing and letting the water run while shaving. Savings also can be effected, they said, by using less water in washing dishes and by cooking foods which require less gas in cooking.

WPB experts said there will be enough gas to meet the absolutely essential needs this Winter, if conservation efforts are successful and the current and threat- (Continued on Page Eight)

LANCASTER MAN KILLS WIFE AND ENDS OWN LIFE

LANCASTER, Nov. 16—A 48-year-old Lancaster carpenter and his ex-wife lay dead and another woman was slightly wounded today in what Coroner J. D. Dupler officially termed a murder-suicide.

Mrs. Ethel Graham, 47, wife of C. C. Graham of Lancaster, died in a hospital several hours after being shot in the stomach by her former husband Walter K. Wallace. The shooting occurred at the home of the dead woman's step-daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Graham in the rear of the C. C. Graham residence, the coroner said. One bullet struck the younger Mrs. Graham in the arm.

After fatally shooting his former wife, Wallace entered the C. C. Graham residence and shot himself in the head, dying instantly, police said.

The coroner said no motive had been learned.

CARS BAG ONLY DEER DURING ARROW SEASON

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 16—The bow and arrow deer hunting season in Westchester county was underway today with two "bambi" killed—both by accident.

Under a new law, several hundred hunters, armed with bows and arrows, scoured the wooded areas of Westchester county seeking the fleet-footed animals.

Only two deer were reported slain. One was killed by an automobile in the town of Greenburgh and the other was killed by an automobile as it crossed Hutchinson River Parkway, a main travel artery.

The amateur "Robin Hoods" failed to bag a single one.

BRITISH HELP IN BIG CLASH NEAR BIZERTE

Allies Hurry Large Forces Eastward From Occupied French Algeria

FLEET SLUGS JAP ARMADA

Enemy Convoy Knifing Into Solomons Area Seeking Showdown Battle

By International News Service
Announcement that American and British forces had made contact with the Germans near Bizerte, great naval base of French Tunisia, overshadowed all other news from Africa today.

The news came from the Morocco radio, now in allied hands. An American spokesman in London, although professing to have no confirmation, did say that news from that source could be regarded as "fairly reliable." This would mean that, for the first time since November 11, 1918, American doughboys were in direct clash with the German army.

The Americans with their British allies were hurrying large forces eastward from occupied French Algeria into Tunisia. The Germans and Italians were said to have some ten thousand troops in the protectorate, thrown hasty in by plane and boat. French colonial forces within Tunisia were reported to be giving the invaders a stiff fight. Their main concern was to keep the capital city of Tunis, key to the whole North African campaign, out of axis clutches.

Action In Pacific
A spin of the globe showed American and Japanese forces locked in a struggle which may be the greatest of the entire Pacific conflict. After five days of battle, the United States navy reported numerous enemy surface forces in action, while U. S. army headquarters in Australia said a gigantic Japanese convoy was sneaking into the area about the strategic Solomon Islands.

Whatever the outcome of that epic struggle, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Yanks and Aussies on New Guinea were putting the pinners on Buna, the last Japanese stronghold on the coast of Papua. Allied bombers rained missiles on Buna's defenses, hit savagely at enemy vessels off Rabaul, New Britain, and tore up an airfield nearby.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—The objective of Chicago area salvage officials in a two-week campaign launched today was the rounding up and scrapping of all "jalopies," those rambling wrecks that can ramble no more in their present decrepit condition.

After due processing they will be fed into the war-busy steel furnaces. John S. Graetzer, Jr., regional chief in charge of salvaging junked automobiles, told the public:

"Any car which cannot be used or reconditioned for transportation should be junked immediately. Owners of such cars have an opportunity and a duty now to donate or sell them to the war production effort."

This represents a summary of opinion among Democratic leaders in Congress today, although a few New Dealers insist Mr. Roosevelt will run again in 1944.

There is no agreement on the identity of his choice for 1944 in event he "does not choose to run."

With the nominating convention 18 months away and with the Republican party in the ascendancy, congressional Democrats are displaying intense interest in Mr. Roosevelt's plans for 1944. The spreading belief on Capitol Hill that Mr. Roosevelt will not run again merely serves to enhance interest in the political stroke of lightning by which he would name his successor as the Democratic standard-bearer.

New Dealers Hopeful

There are a few New Dealers, however, who insist that Mr. Roosevelt will again be the nominee two years hence. They base their forecast upon the belief that the President cannot retire in the midst of the Second World War, or the subsequent peace negotiations—whichever happens to be the fact in the Summer of 1944. But those Democrats, New Dealers and regulars alike, who believe he will retire at the end of his present term, reason like this: Mr. Roosevelt will be glad to drop his White House burdens in 1944, after 12 years as President, and his great ambition then will be to represent the United States at the peace conference and thereby incorporate his "Atlantic charter" in the peace (Continued on Page Eight)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman

New York tossed its pots, pans and curling irons into the scrap drive a month ago.

Everybody felt pretty good about it.

Everybody thought that by the next week the stuff would be headed for the furnaces.

And by the week after that it would be headed for Berlin, Rome or Tokyo.

It ain't so.

More than 85 per cent of that beautiful, precious, badly-needed scrap is still at the scrap depots where it was dumped the first day.

New York had the same experience with its aluminum drive.

If that's a general condition it's a national monument to bungling.

Thought for the day: We never learn nothin'.

LONDON COUPLE KILLED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 16—An elderly London, O., couple were killed when their auto was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing west of Columbus. Coroner Edward E. Smith identified the victims as Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Roberts, 62 and 63. They were returning home after visiting relatives in Columbus.

Fuel Gas Rationing May Be Next

Serious Supply Situation Exists In All Parts Of Nation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—WPB officials indicated today that manufactured and natural gas will have to be rationed in some areas this Winter, if current efforts to obtain a voluntary reduction in consumption fail.

Officials said that the situation is most acute in some cities served by manufactured gas, but refused to identify the areas for security reasons.

A serious gas supply situation exists, however, in all parts of the nation.

Herbert S. Marks, acting chief of the WPB power branch, said that no plan of rationing has yet been worked out, but added that "we haven't given up trying to devise a scheme."

"It is an awfully difficult thing to do," Marks explained. "We just haven't found the practical method yet."

In Great Britain, rationing is done on a quota basis with each home entitled to a certain number of units of heat. The units apply to any form of fuel—wood, coal, electricity or gas.

The WPB already has invoked controls short of rationing in an effort to curtail consumption. One of the latest actions was to extend to all gas rationing—equipment, the prohibition against new gas deliveries. The ban previously did not affect small unit heaters.

Officials appealed to consumers to give up such peace-time luxury habits as having two baths a day, filling the tub to overflowing and letting the water run while shaving. Savings also can be effected, they said, by using less water in washing dishes and by cooking foods which require less gas in cooking.

WPB experts said there will be enough gas to meet the absolutely essential needs this Winter, if conservation efforts are successful and the current and threat- (Continued on Page Eight)

LANCASTER MAN KILLS WIFE AND ENDS OWN LIFE

LANCASTER, Nov. 16—A 48-year-old Lancaster carpenter and his ex-wife lay dead and another woman was slightly wounded today in what Coroner J. D. Dupler officially termed a murder-suicide.

Mrs. Ethel Graham, 47, wife of C. C. Graham of Lancaster, died in a hospital several hours after being shot in the stomach by her former husband Walter K. Wallace. The shooting occurred at the home of the dead woman's step-daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Graham in the rear of the C. C. Graham residence, the coroner said. One bullet struck the younger Mrs. Graham in the arm. After fatally shooting his former wife, Wallace entered the C. C. Graham residence and shot himself in the head, dying instantly, police said.

The coroner said no motive had been learned.

CARS BAG ONLY DEER DURING ARROW SEASON

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 16—The bow and arrow deer hunting season in Westchester county was underway today with two "bambi" killed—both by accident.

Under a new law, several hundred hunters, armed with bows and arrows, scoured the wooded areas of Westchester county seeking the fleet-footed animals.

Only two deer were reported slain. One was killed by an automobile in the town of Greenburgh and the other was killed by an automobile as it crossed Hutchinson River Parkway, a main travel artery.

The amateur "Robin Hoods" failed to bag a single one.

FLEET SLUGS JAP ARMADA

Enemy Convoy Knifing Into Solomons Area Seeking Showdown Battle

By International News Service
Announcement that American and British forces had made contact with the Germans near Bizerte, great naval base of French Tunisia, overshadowed all other news from Africa today.

The news came from the Morocco radio, now in allied hands. An American spokesman in London, although professing to have no confirmation, did say that news from that source could be regarded as "fairly reliable." This would mean that, for the first time since November 11, 1918, American doughboys were in direct clash with the German army.

The Americans with their British allies were hurrying large forces eastward from occupied French Algeria into Tunisia. The Germans and Italians were said to have some ten thousand troops in the protectorate, thrown hastily by plane and boat.

DUCE JITTERY

LONDON, Nov. 16—Premier Mussolini has ordered a strict patrol of the entire Italian coast, apparently in fear of invasion, the allied-controlled Morocco radio reported today.

By plane and boat. French colonial forces within Tunisia were reported to be giving the invaders a stiff fight. Their main concern was to keep the capital city of Tunis, key to the whole North African campaign, out of axis clutches.

Action In Pacific

A spin of the globe showed American and Japanese forces locked in a struggle which may be the greatest of the entire Pacific conflict. After five days of battle, the United States navy reported numerous enemy surface forces in action, while U. S. army headquarters in Australia said a gigantic Japanese convoy was sneaking into the area about the strategic Solomon Islands.

Whatever the outcome of that epic struggle, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Yanks and Aussies on New Guinea were putting the pinners on Buna, the last Japanese stronghold on the coast of Papua. Allied bombers rained missiles on Buna's defenses, hit savagely at enemy vessels off Rabaul, New Britain, and tore up an airfield nearby.

RAMBLE WRECKS HEAD STRAIGHT FOR WAR DUTY

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—The objective of Chicago area salvage officials in a two-week campaign launched today was the rounding up and scrapping of all "jalopies," those rambling wrecks that can ramble no more in their present decrepit condition.

After due processing they will be fed into the war-busy steel furnaces. John S. Graetz, Jr., regional chief in charge of salvaging junked automobiles, told the public:

"Any car which cannot be used or reconditioned for transportation should be junked immediately. Owners of such cars have an opportunity and a duty now to donate or sell them to the war production effort."

GLICK FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Funeral services for Philip Stanley Glick, 53, of Circleville township, who was killed Saturday by a bull at his farm on the Walnut creek pike, will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the residence by the Rev. Neil H. Peterson of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by L. M. Mader.

Full bearers will include Ralph McDill, G. L. Schieler, Robert Rader, Fred Weller, Emerson Martin and Clarence Valentine. Honorary pall bearers will be F. K. Blair, George McDowell, Dr. V. D. Kerns, Russell Palm, William Kohnheiser and Charles Walters.

Mr. Glick, born April 3, 1889 in Circleville township, was a son of Jacob and Mary Murphy Glick. He married Blanche Warner in Circleville on April 12, 1914, his widow; a daughter, Dorothy, wife of Richard Nickerson of Lakewood; a son, David W. Glick of the home; two half-brothers, Turney M. Glick and J. M. Westernbarger of Circleville township, and a half-sister, Mrs. R. R. Bales of Circleville, surviving.

Mr. Glick was a member of the Methodist church and the Washington Grange. He served also as clerk of the Circleville township board of education.

His body was found at noon Saturday by Mrs. Glick who missed him at lunch time. He had left the house about 8 o'clock Saturday morning to feed the stock. Mrs. Glick's first fear that something had happened came when she saw the bull, a three year old Guernsey, loose in the stock pen. He had always been kept in a box stall and was taken from the stall only for watering.

Mrs. Glick found Mr. Glick dead in a corner of the pen. Acting Coroner B. T. Hedges said it is likely he had been dead almost two hours when he was found.

Mrs. Glick called Robert Rader, teller for the Third National bank, who lives nearby. Mr. Rader with other help was able to block the bull in a stall so the body could be removed.

Mr. Glick had never expressed fear of the big animal, but is believed to have been charged when he was taking the bull to water.

The bull was sold Saturday afternoon.

Friends of the Glick family may call at the residence.

and fresh, with their hair nicely brushed, and not a scratch on their plane.

"Then for a closing line, they climb into their plane and cry, 'Now let's fly over Tokyo and take a crack at those Japs!'"

"War was never like that. The people know it, but some directors don't. They had better catch up with the people."

This sensational fact has now been officially admitted. But at first the Safety Division of the ICC blocked full disclosure. On the other hand, the Statistics Bureau, whose W. R. McLean searched railroad files for the real facts, urged complete and full publication.

Finally, Dr. William H. S. Stevens, of the Bureau of Statistics, reached a compromise with the Safety Bureau, and a short version of the report was published—with plenty of sting still in it.

Two railroads were denounced for failure to report accidents truthfully—the Atlantic Coast Line, and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. Both had low accident rates, according to the records, but these rates were established only by covering up accidents.

Referring to the Atlantic Coast Line, the ICC report speaks of "the falsity of the figures reported by this railroad," and declares that "practically the entire organization . . . was thoroughly impregnated with the idea of avoiding accident responsibility."

HIDING THE FACTS

Regarding the Milwaukee road, ICC declared that "great emphasis was placed on ways and means of avoiding the reporting of accidents."

The report is loaded with case histories of accidents, such as the Switchman Akey case on the Milwaukee road. Akey fell backward from a boxcar ladder and injured a lumbar vertebra. This was disclosed by an X-ray, but the fact was not revealed to Akey. ICC found a letter in the company's files which said, "This man, of course, does not know what the X-ray examination developed and I do not believe that he should be told."

Akey was persuaded to return to work the day after the accident, though he was unable to perform all his duties. Purpose was to avoid reporting the case as an accident under ICC regulations.

On the bright side, ICC disclosed that the low accident rate of Union Pacific was not the result of concealment of accidents, but of "a capable and efficient safety organization."

ICC denounced the dodgers by declaring that if they had spent as much time in preventing accidents as they spent in covering them up, many lives might have been saved and injuries avoided.

STREET SOAKED BY GASOLINE AFTER CRASH

Collision at Court and Pinckney streets at 1:15 p. m. Sunday in which one car was turned over, pouring gasoline and oil into the middle of Court street, attracted a crowd of several hundred persons.

SHARE THE MEAT PLAN OUTLINED BY AAA OFFICE

Pickaway county farmers who have been wondering how they will be affected by the "Share the Meat" program were given definite instructions Monday by the AAA office which quoted a statement issued by Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Wickard pointed out that the "Share the Meat" program includes farm slaughter and also meats which families purchase in quantities for storage in freezer lockers.

The Wickard statement follows: "Farmers should count home-slaughtered meat as a part of the sharing allowance as well as the meat they buy at local retail shops. This applies to the meat from home-slaughtered cattle, calves, hogs and sheep, since the "share-the-meat" program affects all beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton. All meat, whether slaughtered on the farm or commercially, makes up the total supply to be available to consumers.

"To avoid waste when large supplies of home-slaughtered meat are temporarily available, as at butchering times, farmers may find it necessary to consume a larger volume, but as an average of the year, their consumption should be held to 2½ pounds per person weekly.

"Farmers who butcher meat for sale locally may continue to do so. However families who purchase such meat from farmers, or obtain meat from other sources for storage in freezer lockers, are expected to consume it in accordance with their sharing allowance."

GLOCK FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Funeral services for Philip Stanley Glick, 53, of Circleville township, who was killed Saturday by a truck at his farm on the Walnut creek pike, will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the residence by the Rev. Neil H. Peterson of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by L. M. Mader.

Pall bearers will include Ralph McDill, G. L. Schieler, Robert Rader, Fred Wefler, Emerson Martin and Clarence Valentine. Honorary pall bearers will be F. K. Blair, George McDowell, Dr. V. D. Kerns, Russell Palm, William Kochheiser and Charles Walters.

Mr. Glick, born April 3, 1889 in Circleville township, was a son of Jacob and Blanche Glick. He married Mary Warner in Circleville on April 12, 1914, his widow; a daughter, Dorothy, wife of Richard Nickerson of Lakewood; a son, David W. Glick of the home; two half-brothers, Turney M. Glick and J. M. Westenhaver of Circleville township, and a half-sister, Mrs. R. R. Bales of Circleville, surviving.

Mr. Glick was a member of the Methodist church and the Washington Grange. He served also as clerk of the Circleville township board of education.

His body was found at noon Saturday by Mrs. Glick who missed him at lunch time. He had left the house about 8 o'clock Saturday morning to feed the stock. Mrs. Glick's first fear that something had happened came when she saw the bull, a three year old Guernsey, loose in the stock pen. He had always been kept in a box stall and was taken from the stall only for watering.

Mrs. Glick found Mr. Glick dead in a corner of the pen. Acting Coroner B. T. Hedges said it is likely he had been dead almost two hours when he was found.

Mrs. Glick called Robert Rader, teller for the Third National bank, who lives nearby. Mr. Rader with other help was able to block the bull in a stall so the body could be removed.

Mr. Glick had never expressed fear of the big animal, but is believed to have been charged when he was taking the bull to water. The bull was sold Saturday afternoon.

Friends of the Glick family may call at the residence.

"WAR AGAINST MRS. HADLEY"

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

and fresh, with their hair nicely brushed, and not a scratch on their plane.

"Then for a closing line, they climb into their plane and cry, 'Now let's fly over Tokyo and take a crack at those Japs!'"

"War was never like that. The people know it, but some directors don't. They had better catch up with the people."

This sensational fact has now been officially admitted. But at first the Safety Division of the ICC blocked full disclosure. On the other hand, the Statistics Bureau, whose W. R. McLean searched railroad files for the real facts, urged complete and full publication.

Finally, Dr. William H. S. Stevens, of the Bureau of Statistics, reached a compromise with the Safety Bureau, and a short version of the report was published—with plenty of sting still in it.

Two railroads were denounced for failure to report accidents truthfully—the Atlantic Coast Line, and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. Both had low accident rates, according to the records, but these rates were established only by covering up accidents.

Referring to the Atlantic Coast Line, the ICC report speaks of "the falsity of the figures reported by this railroad," and declares that "practically the entire organization . . . was thoroughly impregnated with the idea of avoiding accident responsibility."

HIDING THE FACTS

Regarding the Milwaukee road, ICC declared that "great emphasis was placed on ways and means of avoiding the reporting of accidents."

The report is loaded with case histories of accidents, such as the Switchman Akey case on the Milwaukee road. Akey fell backward from a boxcar ladder and injured a lumbar vertebra. This was disclosed by an X-ray, but the fact was not revealed to Akey. ICC found a letter in the company's files which said, "This man, of course, does not know what the X-ray examination developed and I do not believe that he should be told."

Akey was persuaded to return to work the day after the accident, though he was unable to perform all his duties. Purpose was to avoid reporting the case as an accident under ICC regulations.

On the bright side, ICC disclosed that the low accident rate of Union Pacific was not the result of concealment of accidents, but of "a capable and efficient safety organization."

ICC denounced the dodgers by declaring that if they had spent as much time in preventing accidents as they spent in covering them up, many lives might have been saved and injuries avoided.

"WILD BILL" DONOVAN

A lot of people had a hand in preparing the African Expeditionary Force, among them being Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan, now head of the Office of Strategic Services, which deals with the tough job of spurring on the "underground" in Europe.

Donovan made a flying trip through the Mediterranean in the Spring of 1941 and was partly responsible for the stand of the Yugoslavs against the Nazis. Later he reported to Roosevelt that the Mediterranean was the "softest" part of the Nazi armor.

Later, the President himself had most to do with the actual planning of the campaign, though the best part of the whole thing was the way everyone—Army, Navy, Donovan Committee and State Department pulled together.

Note: Wise Admiral Leahy, former Ambassador to Vichy, consistently told the President that the French would not fight, even when State Department advisers on the eve of battle said that they would.

STREET SOAKED BY GASOLINE AFTER CRASH

Collision at Court and Pinckney streets at 1:15 p. m. Sunday in which one car was turned over, pouring gasoline and oil into the middle of Court street, attracted a crowd of several hundred persons.

Accident happened, according to the police report, when Lee Valentine, 457 East Main street, drove his 1937 Ford Tudor from Pinckney street into Court, striking the right side of the 1937 Hudson sedan of Edward J. Fleming, 60, of 1432 East Rich street, Columbus.

No one was hurt seriously. Fleming having a bruised right shoulder and Clellie Hart, 18, with him, suffering a few minor cuts.

Excitement was caused when gasoline and oil poured from the Hudson, police calling the fire department to wash the fuel and oil from the street before someone tossed a match into it.

The accident was investigated and traffic was directed by Chief W. F. McCrady and Patrolmen Turney Ross and Miller Fissell.

MOTHER JAILED

Mrs. Dorothy Fraley, 22, of Ashville, remained in county jail Monday awaiting hearing before Juvenile Judge Lemuel B. Weidman on a charge of contributing to delinquency of two minor children.

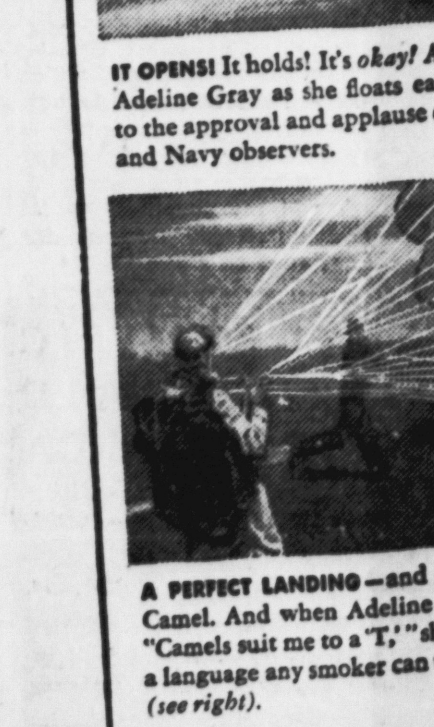

She was arrested Saturday night on a warrant sworn out by her husband, Wade Fraley.

THERE SHE GOES! A 24-year-old veteran of the "silk" is making the first jump test of a new nylon 'chute. Watch as she pulls the rip-cord—

IT OPENS! It holds! It's okay! And so is Adeline Gray as she floats earthward to the approval and applause of Army and Navy observers.

A PERFECT LANDING—and now for a Camel. And when Adeline Gray says: "Camels suit me to a 'T,'" she's talking a language any smoker can understand (see right).

WITH LOCAL BOYS UNDER THE FLAG

E. S. (Ned) Thacher III, son of Colonel and Mrs. Ned Thacher of 62 Wilson avenue, Columbus, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Pioneer Company, 637th tank destroyer battalion. His brother, John, is a sergeant in the same outfit. Their parents do not know their present location but their address is Pioneer Company 637 TD Bn., care of postmaster, San Francisco, Cal.; APO 37. Second Lieutenant Thacher is a graduate of Circleville high school, while his brother is a graduate of Jackson township school.

Corporal Lawrence E. Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lane of Half avenue, lists his present address as: ASN 35270619, RCN Company, 66th AR, APO, 262, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Private Harold F. Wilson has been spending a five day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coit Wilson, Commercial Point, and his wife. He is stationed at Patterson field, Fairfield, O.

Private First Class Philip E. Gordon has been transferred to 24th troop carrier squadron AAF, Del Valle army air base, Austin, Texas. He has been in training at Sedalia, Mo., air base.

Private William Bresler of Camp Meade, Maryland, has been home on furlough. His home is at the Pickaway-Fairfield county line near Tarlton.

Address of Private Paul W. Hankins Jr., of Washington township, is 82nd engineers battalion, AVN, Company A, second platoon, Alamogordo, New Mexico, army air base. He likes the base and enjoys his work, he writes, deploring construction of an air base is quite different from the farm work he has been doing.

James T. McCain, Dwight Haughn and Willard H. Myers, recent Circleville inductees, have arrived at the engineer replacement center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., for an intensive training program in preparation for combat engineer duty. Training will include subjects like close and extended order drill, manual of arms, rifle marksmanship and functions of military engineering.

SHARE THE MEAT PLAN OUTLINED BY AAA OFFICE

Pickaway county farmers who have been wondering how they will be affected by the "Share the Meat" program were given definite instructions Monday by the AAA office which quoted a statement issued by Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Wickard pointed out that the "Share the Meat" program includes farm slaughter and also meats which families purchase in quantities for storage in freezer lockers.

The Wickard statement follows: "Farmers should count home-slaughtered meat as a part of the sharing allowance as well as the meat they buy at local retail shops. This applies to the meat from home-slaughtered cattle, calves, hogs and sheep, since the 'share-the-meat' program affects all beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton. All meat, whether slaughtered on the farm or commercially, makes up the total supply to be available to consumers.

"To avoid waste when large supplies of home-slaughtered meat are temporarily available, as at butchering times, farmers may find it necessary to consume a larger volume, but as an average of the year, their consumption should be held to 2½ pounds per person weekly.

"Farmers who butcher meat for sale locally may continue to do so. However families who purchase such meat from farmers, or obtain meat from other sources for storage in freezer lockers, are expected to consume it in accordance with their sharing allowance."

November 29 is the birth date of Private Hargis Conley of Circleville. His address is Company H, 65th medical regiment, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Private Theodore, C. Steele South Scioto road, who was inducted into the Army recently has been sent from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to Fort McClellan, Ala., where he arrived November 10. He is a member of Company A, Seventh Battalion.

$327,554.17 IS VALUATION SET ON HYDE ESTATE

Estate of Wilby Hyde, prominent Ross county lawyer who died recently, is estimated to be worth $327,554.17, an inventory and appraisal filed in Ross county probate court discloses. Mr. Hyde was widely known in Circleville and Pickaway county.

The estate includes $132,845.51 in farm and city real estate and $194,708.66 in personal goods and chattels.

QUIET FOR POLICE

Circleville police department enjoyed an unusually quiet Saturday night, the jail being evaded by the usual number of inebriates.

Several of the 'spots' about town which had been requiring police patrols each Saturday night were free of disturbances. A visit during the week by state inspectors and orders that a clamp be put on arguments and fights is believed to have brought the let up in the number of arrests.

DEPUTY SHERIFF HURT BY FALLING TACKLE

Deputy Sheriff Byran Custer was knocked out for a few minutes Saturday afternoon when a block and tackle he was helping Joseph Danis remove from a barn on West Ohio street and in which it had been stored fell, crashed through a stair step and struck the top of his head. A laceration about two inches long was treated by a Circleville physician.

DRIVING OVER FIRE HOSE IS LAID TO FOUR

Warrants have been prepared by Patrolman Alva Shasteen against owners of four automobiles which are charged with having been driven over fire hose early Saturday when fire men were fighting flames at the Hoffman residence, South Court street. Named in the warrants are Clydes Young, 166 East Water street; Mrs. Lyman England, Fairview avenue; Ralph East, Derby, and Elliott Justice, Lovett Lane.

The patrolman took license numbers of the cars when they crossed the hose. An ordinance passed in 1916 makes driving a car over a fire hose punishable by a fine of not more than $25.

BAG OF CASH STOLEN FROM PARKED AUTO

Harvey Winn, an employee of the Spur Oil company station, West Main street, reported to police Sunday that a cloth bag which contained $97.96 belonging to his company is missing. Winn told police that he had left the blue bag in his automobile overnight.

The bag contained checks, bills and silver.

SALES TAX INCREASES

Pickaway county showed a substantial increase in sales tax receipts for the week ending October 31 when total sales amounted to $2,274.01, compared with $1,808.87 the same week a year ago. The county's total for the first 10 months of 1942 is $66,117.16.

SUNDAY HUNTING SENDS KENTUCKY WORKER TO JAIL

Gordon of Greenup, Ky., who has been employed as a farmer laborer in the Williamsport community was lodged in county jail Sunday after he failed to pay $25 and costs assessed for Sunday hunting. He was arrested near Williamsport by Game Protectors Clarence Francis and Irvin Patrick. His hearing was in Squire B. T. Hedges' court.

Watch ADELINE GRAY try "Live Test" Uncle Sam's new nylon 'chute in its first—

That's the proving ground of a parachute—just as the "T-Zone" is the proving ground of your cigarette (see below)

YOU can test them in laboratories and wind tunnels... You can toss them out with weighted dummies... But the final test of a parachute is the "live test"—when you step out in mid-air in an actual jump.

And it's like that with cigarettes, too. The final test of any brand is when you light it and smoke it. Adeline Gray, a steady Camel smoker, can tell you: "Camels are milder all ways." Many a man at the front could tell you the same—Camels are the favorite pack there, too. But only your own "T-Zone" can tell you the cigarette that suits you best.

TASTE AND THROAT THAT'S MY TEST OF A CIGARETTE. AND THE BRAND FOR ME IS CAMEL. THEY'RE GRAND!

With men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, THE FAVORITE CIGARETTE IS CAMEL. (Based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens.)

The "T-Zone" where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you...and how it affects your throat. EVERYBODY EVERY PAY DAY 10% OF WAGES IN WAR BONDS

Fair Enough!

IT'S LIKE PUTTING MONEY IN THE BANK!

5 REASONS WHY

- 1 By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.
- 2 You prove that you are a patriotic American.
- 3 You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.
- 4 You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.
- 5 You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

"Listen, mister... I'm making pretty good wages these days, and so are about fifty million others. And we all think pretty much the same about the way we can help America win the war.

"Save 10% in War Bonds every payday? That's no sacrifice—it's a cinch! Like putting money in the bank.

"Take my wife, for instance. She says it's money we just wouldn't save, otherwise—dough that we just chuck away—with nothing to show for it later.

"But this is the real payoff—

"The money we save in War Bonds is going to produce the planes, the tanks, the ships and the guns to make the Japs wish they'd never even seen Pearl Harbor! It's going to produce the bombs and the bullets to make their honorable 'harakiri' seem like a picnic.

"Do you think we people on the home front want to be left out? Don't you know that the workers, the stenos, the farmers, dentists—every last man and woman of us wants to come through with his share?

"So when they came around in our plant and actually offered to help us save for the War Bonds, you can bet we all said 'yes!'

"Every week they save 10% out of our pay—a dime in every dollar—and when it adds up to $18.75, we get a War Bond—worth $25 in ten years. Yes-sir! A War Bond in our own name, or the Missus, or both!

"Honest, now, do you think we're patting ourselves on the back? Do you think we're asking for praise just because we do our part to hamstring Hirohito and Hitler—and lay away a pile of dough in the bargain?

"How about you? Are you in on this plan? If not, better get in. Better save your 10% every payday. Better do your share to wallop the tar out of the Japs and Huns.

"Say 'sure!' when they come to you...

THE MIDDLE SEA

MUSSOLINI bragged that he was going to make the Mediterranean "an Italian lake." Then Hitler taking the idea from Benito, said he was going to make it a German lake. Either of those supermen would fence it in, if he could, keeping the other nations out or making them pay tribute.

The ancient Carthaginians once had the same idea, but Rome grew strong and broke the monopoly. In recent times Britain, which became in many ways a modern Roman Empire, came into control of the Mediterranean, but used her power, except in critical war times, to keep it open. Being primarily a maritime power, it was to Britain's advantage to maintain a water highway for the nations. And the United States, likewise a trading nation desiring to go about freely on her lawful occasions, followed suit. Thus more than a century ago Uncle Sam went into the Mediterranean and cleaned out the Barbary pirates who were holding up traffic there.

Well, Uncle is now in the Mediterranean again with ships and guns, for various reasons, of which not the least is the same old determination to free that same little old international seaway. It is still the heart of world traffic, as it has been for three thousand years. And it will now save many thousand miles for American ships in their job of restoring civilization.

MOTHER'S JOB

ENGLAND learned early in this war that when mothers went into war industries, trouble followed surely as the sun rose. Lady Simon, of the housing division of the Ministry of Aircraft Production, member of the Manchester Education Committee, has been visiting this country, giving pertinent pointers for our use.

The only practicable way for mothers to hold war jobs, says Lady Simon, is on a part-time basis. One mother can work Monday, Wednesday and Friday, while her neighbor works the alternate days. The mother at home looks after the children of both, or friends or relatives fill in. Even that, however, gives children an unsettled feeling, because instead of the care and discipline of one person, they are subject to several, with different ideas of how to do things.

The four-hour shift, coming when children are at school or nursery, seems like the best idea. Schools in industrial district can arrange double shifts, too. Children of mothers who work from eight to twelve, for instance, can go to school from eight to twelve-thirty or one. They are at home when their mother is. Children of mothers who work from one to five

SUPER WAR COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON—Quietly but firmly, Administration leaders have stepped on the idea of a bi-partisan committee of Democrats and Republicans in Congress to advise with the President regarding the war.

This was the plan put forward by Michigan's Senator Vandenberg and other Republicans immediately after the big GOP gains November 3. Some Democrats at first were reported to favor the idea, but Administration leaders used a very simple though effective remedy to block it.

They invoked the pride, power and prestige of Congressional committee chairmen. The chairmen of committees in the House and Senate enjoy enviable positions. Their influence with the executive branch of the Government is great. They can call at the White House almost at will. The Committees run Congress, and to a considerable extent, the chairmen run the committees.

So the last thing the chairmen want is to have their power sidetracked by a super-committee which would go over their heads and confer direct with the White House, State, War and Navy Departments.

To make sure the super war committee was circumvented, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, agreed with his committee members last week that he would demand a full report from Secretary Knox on the status of the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Naval Affairs Committee members said they were tired of getting information about the Navy from Washington columnists, and wanted a report first hand.

Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, will make a similar request of the War Department.

NOTE: Last May, when the Naval Affairs Committee wanted more information from the Navy, it was reported to Committee members that Secretary Knox had remarked: "I'd just as soon give the information to the Germans." Senator Byrd of Virginia is now ready to backstop Walsh in demanding more cooperation.

ERROL FLYNN'S "DESPERATE JOURNEY"

What's the matter with the movies in wartime? Actor Melvyn Douglas, now in Civilian Defense, has the answer, after seeing Errol Flynn in "Desperate Journey."

"It's as unreal as the Rover Boys," says Douglas. "Flynn and his buddies mow the Germans down by just blowing at them. They come out of the battle looking clean can go to school afternoons. Mothers and children thus are both at home together.

What Americans are fighting for is a good world, on the American principle, with future improvements. This can be obtained only if children grow up properly. A generation of unsupervised brats grow into people who can make only a worse world. It's important to deal with this problem before irreparable damage is done.

Growth of Knowledge on Nature of Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"FROM Consumption to Tuberculosis in Connecticut" is the title of a pamphlet which came to my desk. Its phraseology is intended to denote the change that has occurred in the public viewpoint of the disease. It was called "consumption" in 1900 and consumption meant a disease that relentlessly consumed its victim. It is called tuberculosis now, which means we know the cause, we know it is a contagious disease, and therefore preventable, and also we know ways of treating it that result in cure.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

An Early Hospital

The year 1900 is selected because about that time the Gaylord Farm Sanitarium was erected, one of the first hospitals exclusively for the treatment of tuberculosis to be financed by a state legislature.

As the building was being built near Wallingford, a New England family living in a nearby farm house watched it with mixed emotions of interest and skepticism. The oldest son of the family had died of consumption, the oldest daughter was in the last stages of the disease, and two of the remaining children had coughs. They had been told this was to be a hospital for curing consumption. But how foolish it seemed to them. They had been told, they knew from experience tuberculosis was an incurable disease. They thought it was hereditary because didn't they all have it in the family?

Public Skeptical

They were not the only ones who thought that way. The Legislature was only with great difficulty persuaded to pass the appropriation for the sanitarium and they voted a niggardly $25,000. The public itself was skeptical and the medical society was constrained to issue a pronouncement as follows—how far away it seems as we read it:

"Resolved, that through the public press we announce to the citizens of our state that the disease generally known as consumption is not hereditary, but acquired; it is caused by a germ; that the germ is found in the sputum of persons sick of the disease, and that by the complete destruction of all such sputum, consumption can be made to disappear. That consumptives in hospitals should be in a ward by themselves."

"Well, that was in 1900. The comparative statistics of tuberculosis in Connecticut testify to the wisdom and foresight of the founders of Gaylord.

Sanitarium a Success

When the Gaylord Farm Sanitarium was opened there was $92 in the treasury. But Dr. Foster, one of the directors, said: "The one who wants to know if or not the disease can be cured it is only by taking the patient to a high mountain climate. They are surprised that we are building a hospital to treat it in the very climate, year right next door to where their dear ones have sickened and died. Naturally they are unwilling to risk much money. We must go on with what we have. If the work proves good, the people will not let it fail. If it is no good, it ought to fail."

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

UNDER THE blue lights of the personnel office, faces took on a pale, sickly look. As Mary returned to her desk from her interview with the head of the F. B. I., the faces about her seemed to be those in a nightmare. She felt neither exalted nor noble over her decision to continue her work with the F. B. I., even though she were the one to send Bruce Martin to the penitentiary—or death—for espionage and treason. She had done no conscious balancing in her mind between love and duty. She had only known in a cold moment of certainty that if Bruce Martin had done this hideous thing, he must take the consequences. No one could help him avert this fate. No one must help him. She had built a wall around her love—a wall which didn't lessen or change its essence, but a wall beyond which she could not reach with any impulsive action from the heart.

Connie was beckoning urgently. "Nice timing," she put the phone receiver into Mary's hand. "Your roommate's on the wire."

"Hello," Mary said dully into the phone.

Fran was in a hurry and excited. "Listen, chickadee, I'm at the studio and we're doing some re-takes tonight—we'll be here till dawn practically. I called Ken and he said he'd bring you over after work."

There'll be a pass for you at the front gate. It'll be your one chance to get on a sound stage!"

Mary hesitated. At the moment, getting on the sound stage of a motion picture studio did not seem important. But she hadn't the strength to explain this or to break into Fran's happy plans.

"All right. Fine!" she tried to sound grateful.

Even Ken was enthusiastic over the evening. As they drove toward Hollywood under a black, star-studded sky, he told her laughingly how he'd piled his bicycle into a taxi after work and rushed home to get his car.

"Always said I wouldn't go across the street to see the inside of a movie studio," he chuckled ruefully. "But that was before I got the chance."

The gateman filled in their pass, instructed them to keep it and return it when leaving, and told them how to get to Sound Stage No. 9. They walked up the wide alley between darkened buildings. The cutting department was still at work, though, snatches of dialogue and song drifting weirdly out into the quiet night.

At the sound stage they waited until the red light flashed off, then Ken pulled the heavy door. Mary walked in through a cluttered entrance, picked her way through pieces of scenery, stumbled over light cables, then came into the main stage to blink at the brilliance of the flood lights.

Ken took her arm and maneuvered her carefully to a chair within range of the balcony scene on which the lights were focused.

"Let's ease down here until we get our bearings," he whispered. "I'm blind as a bat."

Slowly Mary began to take in the intricate necessities of a movie set. Electricians were hurrying around to adjust the act lights—which surrounded the scene from the floor, from tall standards and from high catwalks that ran around the sides of the walls.

Mary's breath caught as she saw the dark-haired girl on the balcony set. But, Fran coming up at this moment, Mary whispered, "That's only Toinette's stand-in—they practice the lighting on her." Fran slumped into a chair beside Mary and grinned woefully. "Goosh, I'm tired. How'dya like it, kids?"

Mary laughed faintly. "It's such a small balcony for such a lot of lights and paraphernalia," she observed. "This sound stage is as big as Madison Square garden, isn't it?"

"Well, we squeezed quite a few extras on it the other day," Fran retorted. "I'll introduce you to the director later. He's a peach. Shot as much of Burke's stuff first as he could in case Burke got his Navy orders to report."

Ken was bargaining about exploratively. He returned, looking like an eager, small boy on the trail of treasure.

"You know, I've seen pictures of all these things—camera and lights and sets," he said, "but it's kind of a shock to see 'em all together looking so big and powerful and impressive."

Fran howled. "Gets you, does it?" she demanded. "Well, I don't feel so badly then about being bowled over by goggle-eye's ambition a while back."

She squeezed Mary's hand. "I had to stay for the re-take tonight because they worked in a comedy walk-through for me in Toinette's balcony scene. I didn't even get excited over this break. Proves I'm cured."

Mary gave her a smile and returned the squeeze. "Good." But she didn't know why she said it. What difference did it make, she thought dearly, if Fran were ambitious for a career or not. What difference did anything make, if men you loved could lie and cheat and sell out their country . . . and you went on loving them? Wasn't it better to have faith in no one but yourself? To seal up your heart and sublimate its yearnings into personal ambition?

At this moment, Toinette came out onto the balcony and exchanged places with her stand-in. Once more Mary saw the luscious beauty of the dark-haired girl, watched her subtle, compelling mannerisms, as the director moved forward to give her quiet instructions.

"It's all her fault we're having this late retake," Fran whispered. "She blew up yesterday higher than a kite in the love scene. Got hysterical and went home. That's why she'd had to co-operate tonight. Shooting's behind schedule and—"

But Mary was sitting tense and erect in her chair. "You say she blew up yesterday?" Fran nodded. She couldn't talk because the scene had started, and quiet descended like a pall over the huge stage. Toinette was in a difficult mood. She must be humored.

But Mary was not in the mood to humor her. When the tender love scene had been shot to the director's satisfaction, and Toinette had left for her bungalow, Mary grasped Ken's arm.

"I'll meet you at the car," she whispered, and slipped through the sound stage door to hurry after the star. She caught her as she entered her bungalow and said breathlessly, "May I see you? I'm a friend of Bruce Martin!"

Toinette was visibly startled. After one brief look at Mary she nodded and went ahead into the bungalow.

"I remember you," she said slowly. "You were with him at the Brown Derby."

Mary had no time for reminiscences now. She was vibrant with the belief that had grown steadily into a shining hope in her heart as she had watched Toinette play her tender love scene before the grinding cameras. She crossed to sit beside her on the diana now and leaned forward to ask in a tense whisper.

"You couldn't go through that love scene yesterday, could you? You broke down in the middle of it—because you had fought with Bruce the night before! You had a terrible fight with him, didn't you?"

"How do you know that?" Toinette's hoarse cry was a confession.

Mary was breathing deeply. "If it affected you that much," she said slowly, "you must care for him. And if you care for him, you'll help him. Because, believe me, he's in pretty awful trouble at Nordex."

Toinette's great dark eyes were pools of terror in her white face. "What do you mean?" she whispered.

"I mean," said Mary, pounding home each word, "that you must go to the F. B. I. at Nordex and tell them of that quarrel—and tell them, too, how Bruce Martin always had to try when he was troubled. Tell them—"

Both girls swung about as the bungalow door shut. Link Jackson regarded them with a lazy smile from the threshold.

"My, my, did I interrupt something?" Toinette rose quickly. "My friend, Miss Jones—Mr. Jackson," she introduced quickly.

At the door she gave Mary a fleeting smile of farewell. "I will think it over," she promised in her husky voice.

WASHINGTON—Vice President Henry A. Wallace's diagnosis of the recent election result as a Roosevelt administration victory, because the Democrats did not lose control of the senate and house of representatives, has caused a considerable amount of smiling in Washington political circles. To be more exact, they are not exactly smiling, so far as the Democrats are concerned. They're very grins, instead, which don't signify satisfaction, but merely imply the would-be smilers' contention that a severe lull in the pants isn't necessarily fatal.

There is, however, a substantial bit of argument to the effect that present members of the cabinet ought to offer their resignations in a cluster.

This proposition advanced by some Democrats as well as Republicans.

The Republicans themselves don't insist that all such resignations should all be accepted. They think, though, that several of 'em should be. The Republicans say so on general principles; the Democrats as well wishers toward their own party.

Frances Perkins is panned espe-dially. "Ma" may be done a certain amount of injustice.

The hope is that her labor department has been unduly favored at the expense of agriculture, and that the farmers are on her trail to a degree that makes her unfairly conspicuous. Yet, of course, the farmers complain that Agricultural Secretary Wickard hasn't taken adequate care of 'em.

Morgenthau Another Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, it goes almost without saying, is on the pan for current taxes.

War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox naturally are accused of derelictions in their respective fields of operation.

State Secretary Hull apparently has functioned pretty competently. He hasn't quite lined up Argentina and Chile, but he's gradually acquiring 'em.

Justice, the postoffice and the interior aren't factors.

The interior and commerce divisions will be, after the war, when readjustments start, but, as yet, they don't signify.

There probably will be some sort of a post-war readjustment department, too, later—a department of which Owen D. Young, today's chairman of the General Electric company, promises to be the head, secretary of transportation. That's assuming, to be sure, that the current political authority's still in power then. It's reckoning on it as a potent influence among peacetime influences. It's slated for co-ordinate railroadings, motor transport and aviation.

The army and navy are liable to be defensively compacted together, but transportation apparently is due to be separately calculated with.

In the meantime, and immediately, New Deal leaders are demanding a clean sweep of the Democratic national committee.

Flynn May Go Differing entirely from the Wallace verdict, Democratic sentiment, in general, demands a wholesale cleaning out of Chairman Joe Flynn and associates, and a completely new set-up.

They want younger men, the rising generation urges.

There isn't any dispute on the war issue.

There IS one on economics. They mix, somewhat.

It's interesting to note that Senator George W. Norris, beaten for congressional re-election, was suggested for the federal supreme bench. He's 81. Nobody, at his age, ever was appointed to it. He's a left-over, from a past generation.

But wasn't it, maybe, a better generation than this one?

Senator Norris' feelings are hurt by his defeat at the polls.

You don't have to agree with him entirely, to sympathize with him.

THE MIDDLE SEA

MUSSOLINI bragged that he was going to make the Mediterranean "an Italian lake." Then Hitler taking the idea from Benito, said he was going to make it a German lake. Either of those supermen would fence it in, if he could, keeping the other nations out or making them pay tribute.

The ancient Carthaginians once had the same idea, but Rome grew strong and broke the monopoly. In recent times Britain, which became in many ways a modern Roman Empire, came into control of the Mediterranean, but used her power, except in critical war times, to keep it open. Being primarily a maritime power, it was to Britain's advantage to maintain a water highway for the nations. And the United States, likewise a trading nation desiring to go about freely on her lawful occasions, followed suit. Thus more than a century ago Uncle Sam went into the Mediterranean and cleaned out the Barbary pirates who were holding up traffic there.

Well, Uncle is now in the Mediterranean again with ships and guns, for various reasons, of which not the least is the same old determination to free that same little old international seaway. It is still the heart of world traffic, as it has been for three thousand years. And it will now save many thousand miles for American ships in their job of restoring civilization.

MOTHER'S JOB

ENGLAND learned early in this war that when mothers went into war industries, trouble followed surely as the sun rose. Lady Simon, of the housing division of the Ministry of Aircraft Production, member of the Manchester Education Committee, has been visiting this country, giving pertinent pointers for our use.

The only practicable way for mothers to hold war jobs, says Lady Simon, is on a part-time basis. One mother can work Monday, Wednesday and Friday, while her neighbor works the alternate days. The mother at home looks after the children of both, or friends or relatives fill in. Even that, however, gives children an unsettled feeling, because instead of the care and discipline of one person, they are subject to several, with different ideas of how to do things.

The four-hour shift, coming when children are at school or nursery, seems like the best idea. Schools in industrial district can arrange double shifts, too. Children of mothers who work from eight to twelve, for instance, can go to school from eight to twelve-thirty or one. They are at home when their mother is. Children of mothers who work from one to five

By DREW PEARSON

SUPER WAR COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON—Quietly but firmly, Administration leaders have stepped on the idea of a bi-partisan committee of Democrats and Republicans in Congress to advise with the President regarding the war.

This was the plan put forward by Michigan's Senator Vandenberg and other Republicans immediately after the big GOP gains November 3. Some Democrats at first were reported to favor the idea, but Administration leaders used a very simple though effective remedy to block it.

They invoked the pride, power and prestige of Congressional committee chairmen. The chairmen of committees in the House and Senate enjoy enviable positions. Their influence with the executive branch of the Government is great. They can call at the White House almost at will. The Committees run Congress, and to a considerable extent, the chairmen run the committees.

So the last thing the chairmen want is to have their power sidetracked by a super-committee which would go over their heads and confer direct with the White House, State, War and Navy Departments.

To make sure the super war committee was circumvented, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, agreed with his committee members last week that he would demand a full report from Secretary Knox on the status of the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Naval Affairs Committee members said they were tired of getting information about the Navy from Washington columnists, and wanted a report first hand.

Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, will make a similar request of the War Department.

NOTE: Last May, when the Naval Affairs Committee wanted more information from the Navy, it was reported to Committee members that Secretary Knox had remarked: "I'd just as soon give the information to the Germans." Senator Byrd of Virginia is now ready to backstop Walsh in demanding more cooperation.

Growth of Knowledge on Nature of Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"FROM Consumption to Tuberculosis in Connecticut" is the title of a pamphlet which came to my desk. Its phraseology is intended to denote the change that has occurred in the public viewpoint of the disease. It was called "consumption" in 1900 and consumption meant a disease that relentlessly consumed its victim. It is called tuberculosis now, which means we know the cause, we know it is a contagious disease, and therefore preventable, and also we know ways of treating it that result in cure.

An Early Hospital
The year 1900 is selected because about that time the Gaylord Farm Sanitarium was erected, one of the first hospitals exclusively for the treatment of tuberculosis to be financed by a state legislature.

As the building was being built near Wallingford, a New England family living in a nearby farm house watched it with mixed emotions of interest and skepticism. The oldest son of the family had died of consumption, the oldest daughter was in the last stages of the disease, and two of the remaining children had coughs. They had been told this was to be a hospital for curing consumption. But how foolish it seemed to them. They had been told, they knew from experience tuberculosis was an incurable disease. They thought it was hereditary because didn't they all have it in the family?

Public Skeptical
They were not the only ones who thought that way. The Legislature was only with great difficulty persuaded to pass the appropriation for the sanitarium and they voted a niggardly $25,000. The public itself was skeptical and the medical society was constrained to issue a pronouncement

as follows—how far away it seems as we read it:

"Resolved, that through the public press we announce to the citizens of our state that the disease generally known as consumption is not hereditary, but acquired; it is caused by a germ; that the germ is found in the sputum of persons sick of the disease, and that by the complete destruction of all such sputum, consumption can be made to disappear. That consumptives in hospitals should be in a ward by themselves."

"Well, that was in 1900. The comparative statistics of tuberculosis in Connecticut testify to the wisdom and foresight of the founders of Gaylord.

Sanitarium a Success
When the Gaylord Farm Sanitarium was opened there was $92 in the treasury. But Dr. Foster, one of the directors, said: "The people want to know if or if not the disease can be cured it is only by taking the patient to a high mountain climate. She had only known in a cold moment of certainty that if Bruce Martin had done this hideous thing, he must take the consequences. No one could help him avert this fate. No one must help him. She had built a wall around her love—a wall which didn't lessen it or change its essence, but a wall beyond which she could not reach with any impulsive action from the heart.

Connie was beckoning urgently. "Nice timing," she put the phone receiver into Mary's hand. "Your roommate's on the wire."

"Hello," Mary said dully into the phone. Fran was in a hurry and excited. "Listen, chickadee, I'm at the studio and we're doing some re-takes tonight—we'll be here till dawn practically. I called Ken and he said he'd bring you over after work. There'll be a pass for you at the front gate. It'll be your one chance to get on a sound stage!"

Mary hesitated. At the moment, getting on the sound stage of a motion picture studio did not seem important. But she hadn't the strength to explain this or to break into Fran's happy plans.

"All right, fine!" she tried to sound grateful.

Even Ken was enthusiastic over the evening. As they drove toward Hollywood under a black, star-studded sky, he told her laughingly how he'd piled his bicycle into a taxi after work and rushed home to get his car.

"Always said I wouldn't go across the street to see the inside of a movie studio," he chuckled ruefully. "But that was before I got the chance."

The gateman filled in their pass, instructed them to keep it and return it when leaving, and told them how to get to Sound Stage No. 9. They walked up the wide alley between darkened buildings. The cutting department was still at work, though, snatches of dialogue and song drifting weirdly out into the quiet night.

At the sound stage they waited until the red light flashed off, then Ken pulled the heavy door. Mary walked in through a cluttered entrance, picked her way through pieces of scenery, stumbled over light cables, then came into the main stage to blink at the brilliance of the flood lights.

Ken took her arm and maneuvered her carefully to a chair within range of the balcony scene on which the lights were focused.

"Let's ease down here until we get our bearings," he whispered. "I'm blind as a bat."

Slowly Mary began to take in the intricate necessities of a movie set. Electricians were hurrying around to adjust the act lights— which surrounded the scene from the floor, from tall standards and from high catwalks that ran around the sides of the walls. Mary's breath caught as she saw the dark-haired girl on the balcony set. But, Fran, coming up at this moment whispered, "That's only Toinette's stand-in—they practice the lighting on her." Fran slumped into a chair beside Mary and grinned woefully. "Goeh, I'm tired. How'd you like it, kids?"

Mary laughed faintly. "It's such a small balcony for such a lot of lights and paraphernalia," she observed. "This sound stage is as big as Madison Square garden, isn't it?"

"Well, we squeezed quite a few extras on it the other day," Fran retorted. "I'll introduce you to the director later. He's a peach. Shot as much of Burke's stuff first as he could in case Burke got his Navy orders to report."

Ken was bargaining about exploratively. He returned, looking like an eager, small boy on the trail of treasure.

"You know, I've seen pictures of all these things—cameras and lights and sets," he said, "but it's kind of a shock to see 'em all together looking so big and powerful and impressive."

Fran howled. "Gets you, does it?" she demanded. "Well, I don't feel so badly then about being bowled over by goggle-eye's ambition while back."

She squeezed Mary's hand. "I had to stay for the re-take tonight because they worked in a comedy walk-through for me in Toinette's balcony scene. I didn't even get excited over this break. Proves I'm cured."

Mary gave her a smile and returned the squeeze. "Good." But she didn't know why she said it. What difference did it make, she thought drowsily, if Fran were ambitious for a career or not. What difference did anything make, if men who loved could lie and cheat and sell out their country . . . and you went on loving them? Wasn't it better to have faith in no one but yourself? To seal up your heart and subliminate its yearnings into personal ambition?

At this moment, Toinette came out onto the balcony and exchanged places with her stand-in. Once more Mary saw the luscious beauty of the dark-haired girl, watched her subtle, compelling mannerisms, as the director moved forward to give her quiet instructions.

"It's all her fault we're having this late retake," Fran whispered. "She blew up yesterday higher than her carefully to a chair within range of the balcony scene on which the lights were focused.

"It's all her fault we're having this late retake," Fran whispered. "She blew up yesterday higher than a kite in the love scene. Got hysterical and went home. That's why she'd had to co-operate tonight. Shooting's behind schedule and—"

But Mary was sitting tense and erect in her chair. "You say she blew up yesterday?" Fran nodded. She couldn't talk because the scene had started, and quiet descended like a pall over the huge stage. Toinette was in a difficult mood. She must be humored.

But Mary was not in the mood to humor her. When the tender love scene had been shot to the director's satisfaction, and Toinette had left for her bungalow, Mary grasped Ken's arm.

"I'll meet you at the car," she whispered, and slipped through the sound stage door to hurry after the star. She caught her as she entered her bungalow and said breathlessly, "May I see you? I'm a friend of Bruce Martin!"

Toinette was visibly startled. After one brief look at Mary she nodded and went ahead into the bungalow.

"I remember you," she said slowly. "You were with them at the Brown Derby."

Mary had no time for reminiscences now. She was vibrant with the belief that had grown steadily into a shining hope in her heart as she had watched Toinette play her tender love scene before the grinding cameras. She crossed to sit beside her on the divan now and leaned forward to ask in a tense whisper.

"You couldn't go through that love scene yesterday, could you? You broke down in the middle of it—because you had fought with Bruce the night before! You had a terrible fight with him, didn't you?"

"How do you know that?" Toinette's hoarse cry was a confession. Mary was breathing deeply. "If it affected you that much," she said slowly, "you must care for him. And if you care for him, you'll help him. Because, believe me, he's in pretty awful trouble at Nordex."

Toinette's great dark eyes were pools of terror in her white face. "What do you mean?" she whispered.

"I mean," said Mary, pounding home each word, "that you must go to the F. B. I. at Nordex and tell them of that quarrel—and tell them, too, how Bruce Martin always had to fly when he was troubled. Tell them—"

Both girls swung about as the bungalow door shut. Link Jackson regarded them with a lazy smile from the threshold.

"My, my, did I interrupt something?" Toinette rose quickly. "My friend, Miss Jones—Mr. Jackson," she introduced quickly.

At the door she gave Mary a fleeting smile of farewell. "I will think it over," she promised in her husky voice.

White-Hall Vows Read In Ross County Church

Rev. J. R. Beery Of Pleasant Hill In Charge

Ferns and palms banked the altar of Charleston Church of the Brethren near Tucson, Ross county, when Private Donald Olen White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don J. White, 604 South Scioto street, exchanged nuptial vows Sunday at 6:30 p. m. with Miss Leona Juanita Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Hall of Route 6, Chillicothe. The single ring service was performed at a candle light ceremony by the Rev. J. R. Beery of Pleasant Hill.

Tall pedestals bristled with large white chrysanthemums and two five-branch candelabra guarded the approach to the altar. Preceding the ceremony the program of nuptial music included "Ave Maria," "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," "At Dawning" and "I Love Thee" sung by Miss Marybelle Warren of Chillicothe with Miss Marcie Kimball of that city as piano accompanist. Miss Kimball also played "Serenade," "Liebestraum" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride's gown of white duchess satin was fashioned with a pleated bodice and had insertions of lace at the midriff, and through the skirt and long train. Long tight sleeves finished in points at the hand. She wore a heart-shaped pearl brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a French hand-made lace handkerchief and white bouquet. Her long veil of bridal illusion was edged with wide lace of the same pattern as that of the frock and fell from a tiara of pearls and orange blossoms.

Jimmy Maxson, a cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer, and Patsy Jean Rose and Marilyn Ann Hall, nieces of the bride were flower girls. The little girls wore identical frocks of pale pink, made floor length, with ribbon sashes. They carried small baskets of rose petals.

Miss Helen Louise Hall, sister of the bride, wore blue taffeta when she served as maid of honor. Horizontal rows of chiffon velvet trimmed the long skirt of her lovely frock. She wore an arrangement of Taisman roses in her hair and carried a colonial bouquet of rose buds.

Mrs. Warren Hall, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Eva Mae Kanode, cousin of the bridegroom, wore pink and blue respectively, their gowns being made on similar lines to that of the maid of honor. They carried bouquets of yellow pompons surrounded with white, and wore headresses of roses. The attendants wore pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Mr. Ver V. Cassidy, Cincinnati was best man for Private White and Mr. Harold White of Chillicothe, a brother, and Mr. Charles Mumaw Jr. of Circleville served as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. White, parents of the bridegroom, entertained at a reception for 45 guests, immediately after the service, the affair being held at the Town House, Chillicothe. Fall flowers decorated the rooms and a three-tier bride's cake topped with a miniature bride and groom centered the refreshment table. Tall white tapers were on either side of the cake and the bride's bouquet on a mirror completed the attractive table arrangement.

Mrs. Hall in navy crepe with black accessories, joined Mrs. White in receiving. Mrs. White wore transparent velvet with Kelly green accessories and each wore a lovely corsage pinned at the shoulder. Mrs. Harold White, Mrs. Clarence Meers and Miss Christena Strausbaugh were assisting hostesses.

The former Miss Hall is a graduate of Londonderry high school and Ohio university, Athens, where she was a member of Theta Upsilon sorority. Private White attended Ohio university after his graduation from Circleville high school and holds a degree of bachelor of science in commerce from that college. While at Ohio university, he took an active part in the Quadrangle club. He was an accountant for the Ohio Fuel company before joining the army, and is now in the Post Finance Department at Camp Livingston, La. The new Mrs. White is a teacher in the Huntington township school, Ross county.

Persian Opulence

A FUR coat which completely covers one, and which is styled to wear with formal and less formal clothes, is a good buy for the budgeteer. Especially if you can find such a coat in a fur which wears well, you've got something.

Persian lamb of good quality is a hardy fur despite its elegant look, and it is also a warm fur because of its tightly curled, close surface. It is true that years ago this fur was usually presented in downy designs; but of recent seasons, models in it have been stepped up.

Warm, jet black Persian lamb is made into a Cossack type coat which covers completely; convertible collar, deep self cuffs, flatter, broad belt above deep, full skirt.

BOSTON COLLEGE

HAS GREAT '11';

TO BE IN BOWL

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—This is a special notice to Georgia and Georgia Tech, one of which will meet Boston College in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

This is a warning that whichever team encounters Boston College will find itself confronted by what many insist is the biggest and best line of the year, opening gaps for a heavy and bustling backfield that makes the T-formation click with devastating precision second only to the way the Chicago Bears do it.

Jogia or Jogia Tech, man your guns. A football team is fixing to go to town, playing rough and tough every step of the way.

The team that wins that New Orleans game (assuming it will be Boston College against one of the Georgia elevens as expected) will have a right to claim the empty and sometimes confusing but more or less coveted national championship. Who can dispute it, considering the records of the teams up to now and barring setbacks in the few remaining tussles left on the schedules now as the season comes to the big last week end and a few scattered hangover games.

Boston College needs to get past only Boston university and Holy Cross. Georgia plays Auburn and Georgia Tech takes on Florida, bringing the two southern leaders against each other on November 28 for the elimination that will befall one or the other fortunately perhaps. The loser won't have to play the Boston eleven.

When George Halas, esteemed and astute coach of the Chicago Bears, said the Boston College line could play in the National league just as it stands he must have meant it.

NORTHERN CREW

COPS OHIO TITLE

WITH 15-0 WIN

COLUMBUS, Nov. 16 — The powerful Polar Bears of Ohio Northern today were proclaimed as mythical kinds of the Ohio Conference (the loop does not actually recognize champions) following its 15-0 verdict over Heidelberg, marking the fifth league conquest for the Ada eleven.

Cincinnati picked up a lot of prestige by soundly trouncing Dayton, 20-0. Prior to Saturday's turn of events the Flyers had ruled the statewide race with seven victories in eight games. The only losses incurred by the Bears this season have been at the hands of two "big-time" rivals, Georgia and Tennessee.

Capital university stepped into the limelight with one of the biggest upsets of the year, trouncing its arch rival, Otterbein, 3-0, in Columbus. Otterbein ruled the Ohio Conference picture the early part of the year while the success marked the initial league triumph for the Lutherans.

Ohio Northern's assurance of undisputed Conference laurels is the first Polar Bear jaunt to the throne room alone since 1934, but Coach Harry Lamb piloted the team to a tie for top laurels with Bowling Green and Caste last season. Millard Murphy assumed the mentoring reins of the Bears this fall, making the jump from Ada High School.

Another upset win was Ober-

Big Four Still Reign; Michigan Shows Power

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Like the fighting night of the allies it would appear from the week's football frivolity that gridiron strength this season is evenly scattered all over the globe. The performances of the big four, Boston College, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Tulsa would indicate as much for all came through with smashing performances Saturday, despite the usual wave of form reversals, upsets and ties.

Boston College turned in the most impressive display in crucifying the remnants of a once great Fordham team, 56-6, at Boston. It was the most crushing setback the Rams have suffered since 1913 and definitely established B. C. as the team of the east.

Major developments of the day saw Georgia Tech continue unbeaten by whipping Alabama 7-0; Georgia romp over Chattanooga 40-0 and Tulsa intersectional clash. The other big game of the day saw the highly improved Michigan team, deflate Notre Dame, 32-20, for one of the worst beatings the Irish have ever suffered.

So here are the sectional leaders as the season begins to fade into the record books:
East: Boston College.
Midwest: Ohio State, Michigan, Wisconsin.
South: Georgia and Georgia Tech.
Southwest: Texas.
Missouri Valley: Tulsa.
Far West: Washington State.
Their freshman ace, Clint Casheberry, was as hot as the sea on which a certain pair of would-be dictators are sitting across the pond, down in Dixie. He ran all over the field for a couple of minutes to push across the only touchdown as Georgia Tech defeated a fine Alabama team.

The biggest surprise of the week was the manner in which Michigan manhandled Notre Dame. Admittedly a tough team, the Wolverines didn't figure to romp over the Irish in such a touchdown parade. They proved their merit, however, by trailing N. D. 14-13 for the first half and then walloping the Ramblers' ears back with a three touchdown rally in the third period. Michigan piled up 319 yards rushing to N. D.'s 170.

This performance and Ohio State's remarkable spree, in which the Buckeyes whipped Illinois, 44-20, undoubtedly will cause a record mob to jam Ohio's stadium at Columbus next Saturday when the Buckeyes and the Wolverines clash in the country's No. 1 ball game. Ohio State still leads the Big Nine parade and will probably take the title if it can get past Michigan.

In less important battles around the clock Yale managed to come from behind to beat Princeton 13-6 and Harvard which managed to squeeze out a 7-0 win over Brown. The Tigers will next meet Army, winners over VPI, 20-7, at the Yankee stadium here.

Navy, trailing a fighting Columbia team, all the way, won on a freak intercepted pass in the closing minute, 13-9, and will take next weekend off while the Lions meet Dartmouth. The disappointing Penn team, which piles up tremendous statistics but few touchdowns, was upset again by Penn State, 13-7. The Quakers also will spend the weekend meditating on

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Like the fighting night of the allies it would appear from the week's football frivolity that, gridiron strength this season is evenly scattered all over the globe.

The performances of the big four, Boston College, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Tulsa would indicate as much for all came through with smashing performances Saturday, despite the usual wave of form reversals, upsets and ties.

Boston College turned in the most impressive display in crucifying the remnants of a once great Fordham team, 56-6, at Boston. It was the most crushing setback the Rams have suffered since 1913 and definitely established B. C. as the team of the east.

Major developments of the day saw Georgia Tech continue unbeaten by whipping Alabama 7-0; Georgia romp over Chattanooga 40-0 and Tulsa intersectional clash. The other big game of the day saw the highly improved Michigan team deflate Notre Dame, 32-20, for one of the worst beatings the Irish have ever suffered.

Here Are Leaders

So here are the sectional leaders as the season begins to fade into the record books:

East: Boston College.

Midwest: Ohio State, Michigan, Wisconsin.

South: Georgia and Georgia Tech.

Southwest: Texas.

Missouri Valley: Tulsa.

Far West: Washington State.

BEARS RUN UP 38-7 MARGIN IN GREEN BAY TILT

By International News Service

The Chicago Bears and the Washington Redskins today were within sight of victory in the race for their respective division titles and appeared virtually certain of meeting each other for the championship of the National Professional football league December 13.

The champion Bears hurled their last serious obstacle, the Green Bay Packers, in stride yesterday, winning easily, 38 to 7, for their 21st consecutive victory and their eighth league triumph in as many starts this season while the Redskins downed the New York Giants, 14 to 7, for their eighth win in nine starts.

A victory over one of their next foes, Detroit, Cleveland and the Chicago Cardinals, will assure the Bears of at least a tie in the eastern division of the league while the Redskins, who still must meet Detroit and Brooklyn, already are assured at least a tie in the eastern division.

In slapping down the Packers before 32,787 fans in Chicago, the largest crowd of the current season, the Bears capitalized on a Green Bay blunder on the fourth play of the game, Bulldog Turner grabbing a fumble and galloping 45 yards to the goal. Ray McLean added two touchdowns for the Bears while his partners, Sid Luckman and John Petty, got one apiece and Frank Maznicki booted a field goal. The famous Cecil Isbell-Don Hutson combination failed to click consistently but accounted for the lone Packer touchdown. Although the Packers made 14 first down to 12 for the Bears they were far behind on yardage, chalking up 191 to 340 for the champions.

Paced by Singlin' Sammy Baugh and Andy Frakas, the Redskins put on pressure in the third period to down the Giants, 14 to 7.

PICKAWAY VICTOR

Paced by Bobby Young, a sophomore who starred last year for the Ashville reserves, Pickaway township Pirates won their first contest of the season Friday night from Perry township. The score was 30 to 15. Young connected for 15 points. Pickaway reserves also won, 15 to 14.

lin's stunning 21-7 verdict over a heavily-favored Wooster eleven.

Western Reserve, suffering a bad case of overconfidence, was given the scare of its life before finally subduing a fighting Miami team, 12-7. Saturday night in Cleveland, Reserve thus remains as one of the powers of the state, having won seven of its nine games to date.

Keeping the upset ball rolling along at a merry pace, Findlay rose from an obscure position to battle Bowling Green on a 0-0 basis Friday, winding up a highly successful campaign for the Oilers with five wins, four setbacks and a deadlock.

Morris Boggs Who Served In Last World War Accepted Under Draft

Fifty more Pickaway countians, including two men, each of whom has two sons in Uncle Sam's service, were accepted Saturday by the Army medical team in Columbus, boosting the county's total of men under arms or on furlough to almost 1,250.

Forty-four of the accepted men returned home for 14-day furloughs, this being the last group to be permitted two weeks at home after induction. Six are believed to have gone immediately to their training center, being assigned to Fort Thomas, Ky., for classification. Included in this group was Morris Boggs of Circleville, a veteran of World War I, who has been employed at Patterson field, Fairfield, O. Names of others going immediately to their training center were not learned immediately, although there were reported to have been five others in addition to Boggs.

Percentage of acceptance was fairly high since many of the men sent up Saturday were of the third registration, men between 35 and 45 years of age. Also included were some youths of 20 years who registered in the fifth sign up last June.

Proud Fathers

Herbert C. Anderson of 220 Barnes avenue and Thomas W. Walker of Hayward avenue are two of Circleville's proudest men as a result of their acceptance for general duty in the Army.

Anderson has a son, Carroll John Anderson, at the Marine Corps engineers training base at Cherry Point, N. C., and another son, Charles Herbert Anderson, whose last known address was the Pensacola naval base in Florida. He is rated as a second class seaman. Their father's acceptance makes one member of the family in each of Uncle Sam's three arms of service.

Walker's eldest son, David, has been in service two years, being a member of the 37th Division and stationed now in the southwest Pacific. Another son, Charles W. is in the air corps at Lowry field, Colorado.

Both Anderson and Walker are employees of the Eshelman Milling company.

44 Are Tested

The message was sent before the receipt of reports that Gen. Henri Giraud had assumed command, with the approval of Admiral Darlan, of all French forces in North Africa.

The message added that the representatives of the French armed forces in this country were prepared to accept Admiral Darlan's orders and were awaiting instructions from him. It also pointed out that they were about to be moved to a place of internment by the American government, and carried the implied hope that the Admiral would intervene to save them from being interned at the Hershey Hotel, in Hershey, Pa.

At any rate, Modoc, who had broken away every previous time when apparently on the verge of capture, smiled wanly at those assembled last night and lumbered submissively up a ramp into the truck where Judy and Empress awaited her on the farm of Claude Kreig near here.

The occasion for her wan appearance was the loss of 800 pounds on her hectic escapade, some loss even for an elephant weighing a ton or more.

Owner Terrell Jacobs, from whose custody Modoc fled when frightened by dogs last Wednesday, slammed shut the door of the van and soon the elephant, with Empress and Judy, was on her way back home to Peru, Ind.

Jacobs feared Modoc might die from her adventure because she rarely paused to eat or drink while she was fleeing her pursuers and, besides, she might have caught a severe cold.

The whisky toddy, he explained, was not in the nature of a reward, but to fend off the effects of the cold.

"Whisky will save her life now if anything will," he said.

Genoa Hit Again

Genoa, hard-shaken Italy's greatest seaport and main base for supplies and cannon fodder for the African resistance, felt the full weight of the RAF's bombers overnight. All the British planes returned safely after giving its seventh major bombardment in a month to the birthplace of Christopher Columbus.

Soviet forces scored a signal success against the Germans attempting to reach the Georgian military route southeast of Nalchik, Moscow's latest communiqué said. And before and around Stalingrad, the Russians appeared to have by far the upper hand. Soviet scouts pierced through to the rear of German lines north-west of the beleaguered Volga city, killing many Nazis.

Reds Blast Huns

The Red army's forces also got behind enemy lines in the region northeast of the naval base at Tuapse on the Black Sea, and wrecked an enemy supply column. And away up on the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, the Soviets captured and held a village in the face of frantic Nazi counter-thrusts.

Corsica, birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte, was giving another — and imitation — dictator a headache. Mussolini's troops were encountering stiff resistance in trying to occupy the island which, while Italian in name and tradition, has been French territory for well over 150 years.

"The question arises: 'What is the OPA trying to do to this country?'" Miss Sumner continued.

"Russia may consider it democracy to keep everybody poor and let political favorites lead the fine life, but what is so wonderful about Russians that Americans should imitate them?

Bitter Fight In Solomons Takes Heavy Toll Of Sailors, Marines

29,668 missing. Of the 1,531 wounded, 552 have returned to duty.

The navy department reported 16,527 casualties from December 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, to October 31, 1942. This total includes:

Navy—dead, 3,854; wounded, 1,190; missing, 7,972.

Marine corps—dead, 734; wounded, 703; missing, 1,900.

Coast guard—dead, 37; wounded, 11; missing, 126.

Most of the army's casualties, OWI pointed out, are classified as missing and inasmuch as the majority of these were in the Philippines and in Java they are presumed to be prisoners of war. Information, however, is lacking due to the absence of prisoner lists from Japan, OWI said.

The provost marshal's office of the war department reported that as of November 11 the number of army prisoners totaled 161, the navy 460 and the marine corps 728.

Of the 29,668 soldiers listed by the war department as missing, 17,500 were American troops in the Philippines and 11,000 others were Philippine scouts, the OWI said. An additional 500 troops are reported missing in Java.

OWI also explained that some of the missing in the navy department's lists are presumed to be prisoners.

Percentage of acceptance was fairly high since many of the men sent up Saturday were of the third registration, men between 35 and 45 years of age. Also included were some youths of 20 years who registered in the fifth sign up last June.

Proud Fathers
Herbert C. Anderson of 220 Barnes avenue and Thomas W. Walker of Hayward avenue are two of Circleville's proudest men as a result of their acceptance for general duty in the Army.

Anderson has a son, Carroll John Anderson, at the Marine Corps engineers training base at Cherry Point, N. C., and another son, Charles Herbert Anderson, whose last known address was the Pensacola naval base in Florida. He is rated as a second class seaman. Their father's acceptance makes one member of the family in each of Uncle Sam's three arms of service.

Walker's eldest son, David, has been in service two years, being a member of the 37th Division and stationed now in the southwest Pacific. Another son, Charles W. is in the air corps at Lowry field, Colorado.

Both Anderson and Walker are employees of the Eshelman Milling company.

Congressional Democrats Show Keen Interest In President's Plans

treaty; he will have a better chance of attaining this ambition if he retires in 1944.

Peace is Point
To those who say he cannot retire if the war is not yet won or is going badly with the United Nations in the Summer of 1944, the answer is that the status of the war will not be a major point in his decision; the major point will be how to win the "Roosevelt peace."

Look ahead to 1944. If conditions are such that a Republican presidential victory seems assured—as many now predict—Mr. Roosevelt cannot be a candidate because if he were defeated, all his peace plans would be tossed in the ashcan, repudiated by a popular vote; however, he can preserve his plans intact, if some other Democrat goes down to defeat, even with his blessing, because he would remain the only three-term president in the history of the United States and the man who retired as "undefeated champion," whose peace views would have to be considered by any Republican in the White House.

On the other hand, if conditions favor a Democratic victory, then Mr. Roosevelt merely lightens his physical burdens by turning the chief magistracy over to a trusted lieutenant and he will be shed of those burdens when he naturally leads the U. S. delegation to the peace conference.

Views of Wise Men

These are the views of the wise men on Capitol Hill. Some of them have called the political turns for a quarter century. All admit they are guessing. A few regulars share the minority New Deal view that Mr. Roosevelt will run again and their reason is that he will refuse to give up an inch of power until it is taken away by the people. These few frankly concede they have no liking for the President.

There have been some rumors favoring retirement. One is that a lady relative of Mr. Roosevelt tells her friends that the President will not run again; that the issue has been raised, discussed and settled in Mr. Roosevelt's mind; and no new circumstances can change his decision.

ery's men had seized the axis landing grounds at Martuba, only a jump away from the Cyrenaican port of Derna, and was continuing to harry the rear of Nazi Field Marshal Rommel's now tattered and torn panzer army. Genoa Hit Again

Genoa, hard-shaken Italy's greatest seaport and main base for supplies and cannon fodder for the African resistance, felt the full weight of the RAF's bombers overnight. All the British planes returned safely after giving its seventh major bombardment in a month to the birthplace of Christopher Columbus.

Soviet forces scored a signal success against the Germans attempting to reach the Georgian military route southeast of Nalchik, Moscow's latest communiqué said. And before and around Stalingrad, the Russians appeared to have by far the upper hand. Soviet scouts pierced through to the rear of German lines northwest of the beleaguered Volga city, killing many Nazis.

Reds Blast Huns

The Red army's forces also got behind enemy lines in the region northeast of the naval base at Tsuapen on the Black Sea, and wrecked an enemy supply column. And away up on the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, the Soviets captured and held a village in the face of frantic Nazi counter-thrusts.

Corsica, birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte, was giving another — and imitation — dictator a headache. Mussolini's troops were encountering stiff resistance in trying to occupy the island which, while Italian in name and tradition, has been French territory for well over 150 years.

Fuel Gas Rationing May Be Next

ened shortages do not become more pronounced.

The two large natural gas producing states of Texas and Oklahoma are exempted from the current residential limitations. Included, however, are the following areas:
Alabama, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas, Minnesota, the District of Columbia and parts of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, and Arizona.

Even in Texas and Oklahoma, however, controls have been imposed on non-residential users of natural gas because of the limited capacity of existing pipelines which serve war plants in those areas.

"I call it: 'rich man's rationing,'" Miss Sumner added. The congresswoman described her own marketing experiences where she had found it impossible to buy meat, but could go to virtually any restaurant and get a choice steak or chop "for the price if I had it."

"The question arises: 'What is the OPA trying to do to this country?'" Miss Sumner continued.

"The traditional American system encouraged home-building in war the same as peacetime—and it won every war.

"Russia may consider it democracy to keep everybody poor and let political favorites lead the fine life, but what is so wonderful about Russians that Americans should imitate them?"

"Or maybe we are trying to imitate Berlin where the military clique and the favored wealthy can get luxuries in hotels and restaurants that are denied the plain citizen. Where are we heading in this country?"

"If the last election showed anything it revealed that Americans wish to return to the American principle which both political parties upheld for a century—a fair deal for everybody and no pets."

LIST INCLUDES DEAD, WOUNDED AND MISSING

Bitter Fight In Solomons Takes Heavy Toll Of Sailors, Marines

29,668 missing. Of the 1,531 wounded, 552 have returned to duty.

The navy department reported 16,527 casualties from December 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, to October 31, 1942. This total includes:
Navy—dead, 3,854; wounded, 1,190; missing, 7,972.

Marine corps—dead, 734; wounded, 703; missing, 1,900.

Coast guard—dead, 37; wounded, 11; missing, 128.

Most of the army's casualties, OWI pointed out, are classified as missing and inasmuch as the majority of these were in the Philippines and in Java they are presumed to be prisoners of war. Information, however, is lacking due to the absence of prisoner lists from Japan, OWI said.

The provost marshal's office of the war department reported that as of November 11 the number of army prisoners totaled 161, the navy 460 and the marine corps 728.

Of the 29,668 soldiers listed by the war department as missing, 17,500 were American troops in the Philippines and 11,000 others were Philippine scouts, the OWI said. An additional 500 troops are reported missing in Java.

OWI also explained that some of the missing in the navy department's lists are presumed to be prisoners.

DARLAN SHORN OF AUTHORITY, VICHY DECLARES

LONDON, Nov. 16 — The Vichy radio announced today that French Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain has deprived Admiral Jean Francois Darlan of all public offices as well as military commands because of his cooperation with allied forces in North Africa.

Petaim was quoted as saying: "When Africa was attacked I entrusted its defense to Darlan.

In the very first engagement the Admiral did not hesitate to enter into contact with his assailants and, in giving a premature order to cease firing, demoralized resistance by shattering the morale of the troops.

"Several times I confirmed my order to him to defend Africa, but he disregarded it. Therefore, I deprive himself of all offices."
